and who is the father of eight children, has just given away one of his daughters in marriage. Three Russian princesses belonging to the Paris colony, have each presented a splendid bracelet to the bride; one of them is of diamonds, another of rubies, and the third is of emeralds. Another well known Russian lady here has given her a silver tea service. And so on.

Another exhibition that has been drawing a flock of visitors of both sexes, is that of a newly-founded institution, called "The Society of Bees," founded by a benevolent lady well known in this region, Madame Cave. The object of the Society is to furnish a centre where women in straitened circumstances can sell their work, a sort of permanent bazaar, in which the members of the Society, "The Bees," as they call themselves, expose for the sale the products of their ingenuity, needlework, embroidery, drawings, paintings and artificial flowers, and all manner of fancy articles. Everything sold by the Society bears its stamp a bee; but the maker's name is kept secret.

Another Society equally zealous is called "The Work of Tabernacles," and has for its object to provide splendid vesments and altar ornaments for churches too poor to provide them. The proudest dames of the Faubourg St. Germain belong to this Society; they contribute old dresses, which are dyed for the purpose, bits of lace, &c., and meet together every week, to sew the pieces together, and make them. The most zealous always cut a piece off every piece of silk, satin, lace, muslin or riband bought by them, as a contribution towards the materials; one of them a few days ago, on ordering a costly dress from a fashionable dress maker, remarked, "I should have preferred a blue silk; but we are greatly in want of violet coloured pieces for a vestment we have in hand; and therefore I choose a violet one." The late famous Provençal poet, Jasmin, was so much touched by the dilapidated state of a country church into which he one day entered, and by the poverty of the curate, who had been reduced to cobble together some scraps of an old sheet to use as a surplice, that he proposed to the latter to join him in a begging-tour to collect funds for rebuilding the church, and supplying himself with the necessaries of his office. The two accordingly travelled for a while, Jasmin reciting his beautiful poems, and getting contributions from his auditors, though not many of them could understand the old tongue of Lanquedoc; the curate telling the story of the poverty of his parish; and the pair going thus from point to point, until they reached Paris. Here the King, hearing of the two wanderers, sent for them to Court, and made much of them; Guizot, Thiers, and the other notabilities of the day, all invited them to their houses, and the Faubourg St. Germain did the same. The curate went back to his village with abundance of funds, and built a fine new church, well supplied with everything needful. As for Jasmin, who had made over to the curate all the money he had received on their tour, he was fain to beg from his friend, the sum of ten francs to pay his way back to his home at Ageu.

The public masked ball just given at the Chatelet Theatre, has been a brilliant success; though 6,000 tickets were given gratis, the receipts amounted to 7,500 francs. But as the mere boarding of the floor, which is considerably larger than that of the Grand Opera, cost 10,000 francs, the theatre must give a few more of these balls before it can cover the cost of its innovation.

The production of Sardanapale, at the Theatre Lyrique, has been a great success; but a comical incident occurred there a night or two ago. Just as Cazaux, as high priest, was opening his mouth to sing one of his most important airs, his voice suddenly failed him and, at that critical moment, when the poor artist was struggling with this obstacle known technically among singers as "a cat in the throat" some was introduced on the stage a large black and white cat, which came slowly forwards towards the footlights and sat down there, drawing its tail round its paws, and quietly contemplating the actor, who, unconscious of the animal's presence, naturally interpreted the storm of laughter, bravos, and clapping hands which burst from every corner of the house, as an ironical testimony to the opinion by the audience, of the struggle he was having with his throat. The cat, frightened by the noise, beat a hasty retreat behind the scenes, and the singer, having at length got back his voice, the piece proceeded as usual. It was not till Cazaux had gone off the stage, that he learned the cause of the outburst of laughter which had so much annoyed him.

Nelaton has mended Miss Menken's ear, a piece of which was torn nearly off in her last fall. A dinner of twelve persons principally of Americans, at the Cape Poy, has just cost 6,500 francs; the diners consumed 100 bottles of wine and liqueurs, and 320 francs of cigars. They gave 250 francs to the waiters and devoured the rest.

MR. R. B. BARTON, the acting Senior Magistrate of Police, on Wednesday attended at the Small Cause Court, before the acting First Judge, to give evidence in a case in which a Hindoo resident of Nagotana, Govind Ramjee Manday, sued one Kessoor Namaya, also a resident of that place, for the recovery of about nine hundred rupees, being the amount alleged to be due on a promissory note. It appeared that the defendant in this case with another man were some time in 1864 charged before Mr. Elphinstone with the theft of certain property belonging to Government. The plaintiff's allegation was that at the request of the defendant, he had paid Mr. Barton rupees five hundred for defending him. Mr. Barton stated that in the month of September 1864 he proceeded to Carwar to defend Kessow Namaya, and that he was paid one thousand rupees by the plaintiff. The plaintiff further alleged that he had paid a sum of rupees three hundred to Mr. Shantaram Narrayen for presenting a petition to the High Court for the removal of the proceedings from Mr. Elphinstone's court to some other court. Mr. Shantaram was also examined, and he believed that he had received the amount. It was stipulated in the agreement that the amount now claimed was to be paid in equal proportions by the prisoners in the case. His Honor gave a verdict for the plaintiff for Rs. 500. Mr. Hormusjee appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Khunderao for the defendant.

CLEVER FORGERY OF CURRENCY NOTES DETECTED.

THE executive police have been for the last two or three days actively engaged in the detection of perhaps one the most ingenious note forgeries which has ever been carried on in this part of the world. As will be seen from the statement of Mr. Alfred Edgington given below, and taken before Mr. Barton yesterday, three Hindoos named respectively Bhugwantrow Purushram, Succaram Yeshwant and Wasodew Govind were caught by that gentleman with a number of forged currency notes for Rs. 1,000 each in their possession as well as two copper plates other materials for executing the same. We have seen the plates, which are very neatly engraved from one of which the water mark is printed on the paper and from the other the impression of the note is taken, the paper of the notes is rather thicker than the genuine notes, and it was only by a slight scratch of the graver's tool that the non-genuineness of the notes were detected.

It has been for some days past a source of considerable anxiety both to the police and the Bank officials that a number of extremely well got up notes for large amounts have been in circulation and which have deceived some of the most experienced; and the detection of the present forgers was the result of efforts which had been recently made.

At half past 7 o'clock on the night of the 11th inst., Mr. Edgington, chief superintendent of police, accompanied by a detective police jemadar, went to a room in the first floor of a house in Koombharwadda, and concealed himself behind a bamboo partition, between the interstices of which he could see the front part of the room. A lamp was burning in the room. In a few minutes, a police agent named Hurgovundas entered the room, followed by the third prisoner, with whom he entered into conversation. The police agent produced a roll of genuine notes which, he said, he had brought for the purchase of forged notes for Rs. 1,000 each. The third prisoner in a few minutes left the room and brought the second there, and a consultation took place between them. The police agent urged that he should treat only with the master and not the servants, which the second and third prisoners were represented to be; and, accordingly, the first prisoner was shortly afterwards introduced as the principal in the transaction. A long conversation ensued; the police agent asked for ten or twelve pieces, but the prisoners said they could then give him only five and more afterwards. The first prisoner, in answer to the police agent, was heard to say, in a boastful tone, that he could give such good notes that, when they were presented, he would defy any one to refuse payment for them. The prisoners then left the room, and the second and third returned immediately afterwards. A roll of notes was then seen in the hands of the occupant of the room, who was in the confidence of the police, and they were handed to the police agent, who began to select the best of them. Some further conversation ensued, when Mr. Edgington stepped from the place where he was concealed, picked up five forged notes for Rs. 1,000 each, which were lying on the ground before the prisoners, and arrested them. The first prisoner, who had gone out of the room, was arrested in the street, outside the house.

Mr. Edgington asked for an adjournment until Monday next, in order to present to His Worship the whole of the case in regular form.

His Worship granted the adjournment.

THE ARMY SCRIPTURE READERS' AND SOLDIERS' FRIEND SOCIETY.

A PUBLIC meeting in connection with the Bombay Auxiliary of the Army Scripture Readers' and Soldiers' Friend Society was held in the Durbar Room of the Town Hall on Tuesday afternoon. There was a large attendance of ladies and gentlemen, and H. E. Sir Robert Napier, K. C. B., occupied the chair.

The Lord Bishop of Bombay having opened the proceedings with prayer,

The Rev. D. Macpherson (one of the secretaries) read a Report, the introductory passages of which are as follows:—"The Bombay Central Committee of the Army Scripture Readers' and Soldiers' Friend Society beg for the first time to publish a statement of the operations of the Society within the Bombay Presidency. Five Scripture Readers are at present labouring in the Garrisons of the Bombay Army. One has been stationed at Bombay for about seven years, one at Poona for six years, one at Kirkee for nearly five, one was sent to Mhow in 1865, and an additional Missionary for Poona was appointed in April 1866. It is scarcely necessary to state that the work of the Scripture Reader is designed to be auxiliary and supplementary to the work of the Chaplain. His duty is to devote himself to visiting the soldiers in barracks, hospitals and cells, and to hold Bible classes for their instruction. In every large cantonment it is impossible for the most zealous Chaplain to become personally acquainted with all the individual soldiers. A judicious and pious lay Missionary, devoting himself to mingle freely with the men, able to show a constant kindly interest in all that concerns them, and thus having special opportunities both of knowing their characters and of winning their confidence and affection, cannot fail to be an auxiliary of very great utility. To this the present Bishop of Madras has borne strong testimony in the following words, addressed to the Chaplains of his diocese:—'Where the number of soldiers is large, you should not fail to secure the assistance of a Scripture Reader. Such an agent is now indispensable in a military cantonment. He can be useful at seasons and under circumstances when the clergyman cannot. He can ascertain more exactly the character and feelings of individual soldiers. He can greatly assist in bringing religion into their homes and hearts.' The Committee would direct special attention to the thorough catholicity of the Society. One of its regulations is that its agents must avoid the discussion of denominational differences as well as every attempt at proselytizing. It may be mentioned that among the patrons of the Society in England are His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury, His Grace the Archbishop of York, the Lord Bishop of Lincoln, and the Chaplain General of the Forces. The Archbishop of York has also presided at several of the annual meetings of the Society, and said on one such occasion:—'I heartily commend this Society to your prayers, and your pecuniary assistance, and I am sure that of all the objects that occupy the attention of the benevolent, none has a better or more substantial claim.' No general effort has hitherto been made throughout this Presidency to obtain subscriptions on behalf of the Society. Now, however, that the Society maintains five Scripture Readers in the Presidency and is anxious, if funds permit, to occupy in addition Kurrachee, Belgaum, Deesa, and Ahmednuggur, it is felt that large assistance ought to be provided from local sources. It is respectfully submitted that a Presidency like this should maintain its own Scripture Readers with little aid from England. It may be mentioned that one Engineer officer, who withholds his name, contributes out of his pay Rs. 100 a month,—the amount of salary paid to the Mhow Scripture Reader. It is hoped that such generosity will stimulate the liberality of not a few. It may further be mentioned that in 1864 a sum of Rs. 9,083-11-8 was raised on behalf of the Society in the Madras Presidency. The Committee would venture to appeal to the public of this Presidency also for like liberal support. They do so with confidence on behalf of soldiers to whose gallant deeds so much is due, and who being by the necessity of their life brought into circumstances of special temptation may well claim from the Christian public that what can be done for their spiritual good shall be done, and that cheerfully." The Report then goes on to give particulars of the work of the different Scripture Readers in this Presidency connected with the Society. The reader in Bombay is Mr. McKinlay, whose devotion to the soldier's welfare is spoken of in terms of high commendation. Mr. J. S. Bailey at Ghorpoorie, Mr. Agnew at Poona, Mr. Reeves at Kirkee, and Mr. Joseph Powell at Mhow, are the other Readers, and the Report publishes ample facts and testimonials showing their efficient, useful, and successful men.

The Lord Bishop rose to move the following resolution:—"That the Report now read be adopted, and published as the first Report of the Bombay Auxiliary Army Scripture Readers' and Soldiers' Friend Society." He had been thinking what a wonderful book the Bible was for its adaptation to different classes of society, and he had felt that if there was any one class of society to which its lessons seemed in an especial manner likely to be useful it was that class for whose benefit his hearers had met together on this occasion. While he believed that any man who followed an honest and honourable occupation might find something touching his occupation in the pages of the Word of God, it seemed to him that the soldier would find that blessed book replete with facts and with allusions which brought him into contact with his own profession and showed him how to sanctify the walks of that profession by thoughts which the Holy Spirit of God had provided for his instruction. The Lord Bishop, in a few eloquent passages, showed that Biblical history was filled with allusions to warriors as eminent for their piety as for their bravery, and that it was calculated on that account to be peculiarly engaging and profitable to the soldier. In listening to the Bible the soldier would hear of men who had gone before him in the same path in which God had called him to walk, and he would learn from it how fallacious was the idea which often prevailed amongst his companions, that it was impossible for a soldier to be a religious man. After enlarging on these points the Lord Bishop referred to the way in which the work which this Society had in view was discharged in this Presidency by the good and humble men to which it was entrusted. If (said he) all the Scripture Readers were like those he had seen at Poona and Kirkee he was sure that the blessing of God would abide with their labours, because it seemed to him that if there was any feature in their character more peculiar than another it was their quiet unobtrusive patient judicious performance of their duty. (Applause.) In regard to one of them—Mr. Powell, the Scripture Reader at Mhow—he was not personally acquainted with him, but the mention of his name had called to his recollection an interesting incident which occurred on his own experience at Kirkee. Mr. Powell had then just left His Excellency's Band, in which he had been the friend and counsellor of others younger than himself. He (the Lord Bishop) was about to conduct divine service in the Church when the Archdeacon told him one of those young men had said to him that they were much dejected on account of their having lost one on whom they so much depended, and had requested him with great simplicity to ask that something might be said in the sermon suitable to their case. This the text he had chosen enabled him to do; but what struck him was the beautiful state of mind which must have generated by that good man's work while he was in the Governor's Band. It was such a result that was expected from the labours of the Scripture Readers of this Society—that in wise and gentle ways they would win the attention and the confidence of others, drawing them not to themselves only, but drawing them to the blessed Jesus, the great Captain of their salvation, so that, numbered in his band, they would fight manfully against the temptations of the world and the flesh, and would at last, as faithful soldiers of their God, receive the promised reward—"Well done, good and faithful servant, enter into the joy of my Lord."

Lieut. Colonel Field seconded the resolution which had been moved by the Lord Bishop. He had felt constrained by a sense of duty to come down from Poona to attend this meeting. He had had many opportunities in years past of becoming intimately acquainted with the work of the Scripture Readers there; he knew also the estimation in which they were held by the soldiers, and to a certain extent he knew the effect which had been produced on the mind of the soldiers by the labours of the Scripture Readers; and on hearing that this meeting was to take place he had considered that he ought to come down and bear testimony as far as he could to the value of their work. He had reason to think that in many minds, and in the minds of many good friends of the soldier, there were wrong impressions prevailing with regard to the importance of the work and with regard to the agency themselves. Now, he had been a close observer for some years past and had been personally acquainted with five out of the seven Scripture Readers mentioned in the Report; he was Secretary, also, of one of the local Committees, and had been in the habit of meeting every week the Scripture Reader who was in connection with it, seeing his journals and being often consulted by him; and he had therefore good reason for saying what he now said—and he spoke from what he had seen with his own eyes, without one word of exaggeration)—that of all the agencies at work in connection with the British army there was to his mind no agency calculated to produce more important results towards the individual feelings and the generosity which pervade their welfare of the soldier and the general discipline of the army than this present agency of Scripture Readers. (Applause.) It was absolutely needful, of course, that the Scripture Readers should be selected with great care, that they should be men of faith and men of love, and should feel in their own hearts the power of God's Word in drawing from darkness to light and in releasing the soul from the bondage of sin and Satan; and he was happy to say that those with whom he was personally acquainted were, as far as man could judge, strongly constrained by the love of Christ in seeking the salvation of those around them. He had seen them in the hospital and in the prison, and he knew how comforting their presence was, both to the sick soldier and to the man in the cell. A great many soldiers came to look upon the Scripture Reader as their best friend; they consulted him in times of difficulty—they came to him in the darkness of the night for consolation. Many illustrations were thus afforded of what God had said,—that he had chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise, the weak things to confound the mighty, and base things and things despised to set at naught things that are; and he thought one cause of the erroneous impressions which prevailed in many minds with regard to Scripture Readers was that this way of God's working was overlooked. People looked and said—"What a poor weak man they use—a man without any superior education, with no particular gift at all! What can that man do? What can that man expect to effect?" Truly if it was by his education, or any other quality of his own, he could do nothing, but it was God's way to use such instruments for the good and the salvation of souls. He trusted that it would not be considered presumptuous on his part to speak as he had done, because he felt very deeply the truth of what he had said, having seen with his own eyes the benefit which the soldiers derived from the labours of the Scripture Readers, and knowing every word of what he said to be strictly and literally true. If there was any one who doubted it let him take the Bible in his hand and go to the General Hospital and read it to the sick men he would find there;—let him do this, and he would soon see in many faces how thankfully the Word of God was received.

The resolution was adopted.

Lieut. Col. Phayre proposed the second resolution, which was as follows:—"That the following gentlemen be elected members of the Central Committee and office-bearers for the present year:—Brigadier General Russell, Major Annesley, Major Bacon, Rev. D. C. Boyd, Rev. G. Bowen, Captain Davidson, R. E., Colonel Gell, Lieut. Colonel Kinloch, F. G. Joynt, Esq., M. D., Rev. J. Paton, Major Thacker, and Rev. T. K. Weatherhead; Rev. F. Spring and Rev. D. Macpherson, Joint Secretaries; and G. Nicolson, Esq., M. D., Treasurer." Lieut. Col. Phayre spoke at some length in corroboration of what Col. Field had said with regard to the labours of the agents of this Society, and he afterwards referred in commendation to that rule of the Society by which all denominational differences were ignored, comparing the object of the Society in this respect to that of St. Paul when he said to the Corinthians—"I determine to know nothing among you save Jesus Christ and Him crucified." If the Society adhered to this principle, its agents would be esteemed and cherished by the soldiers. Englishmen enjoyed great blessings and privileges, not only in their national position, but in their having an open Bible, which they could read, thank God, none hindering. But they had responsibilities accompanying those privileges, and he thought this Society and its contributories had those responsibilities in view when they sent forth agents into the ranks of the British army in order that the truth of that open Bible which was the mainstay of the country should be widely spread. He had been very much struck during the fearful struggle which took place in America not long ago, by the accounts of the noble efforts which were made by her statesmen, her clergy, and her citizens for the spiritual welfare of the soldiers. England ought not to be behind in the work. They had seen its good. He himself had been a constant attender at soldiers' meetings for some years, and from what he had seen he now bore humble testimony to the good which had been done and which was still likely to be done, throughout the army, by such means as this Society adopted. (Applause.)

The resolution was seconded by Captain Hobson and adopted.

Lieutenant Colonel Sandwith then moved the third resolution, which was as follows:—"That the several stations of the Western Presidency be invited to form local committees, consisting of the Chaplains, military officers, and others interested, for the purpose of raising funds, and generally furthering the object of the Society." It was impossible for the Central Committee in Bombay to attend to the wants of all the stations in this Presidency, and therefore it was proposed, as only right and fair, that they should be helped by the formation of a local Committee at every station. It was needless for him to say anything in regard to the work of the Scripture Readers, because it had already been ably spoken of by his friends Colonel Phayre and Colonel Field; but he begged to endorse every word of what they had said. He was thoroughly convinced of the great necessity for this Society; and he thought it our duty, while we took care of the soldier's body in every respect, also to take care of his soul (Applause.) The Scripture Reader was particularly suited for gaining the confidence of the soldier, because he was an old soldier himself. At any rate four of the Scripture Readers, to his knowledge, were old soldiers. As to the chaplain, on the other hand, the men were rather afraid to speak with him. With regard to the formation of local Committees, the chaplain must, of course, by the rules of the Society be the superintendent; and he thought it might safely be hoped that in all the stations the chaplains would gladly superintend this good work. Military officers also were asked to do their part. It was their duty, wherever they were stationed, to make known the objects of this Society, to collect funds to pay the Scripture Readers, to settle the accounts, to provide Bible classes with books, and to advance the work in other ways. This was the object of the resolution which was now proposed.

Dr. Joynt in a few remarks seconded the proposition,—which was afterwards put to the meeting and adopted.

Brigadier-General Russell moved,—"That a subscription list be forthwith opened and generally circulated." He thought that the present time was particularly opportune for an effort to promote the work of this Society, seeing that the Chief of the Army in this Presidency had kindly consented to be its Patron. (Applause.) He thought the moral effect of this would be considerable. The Scripture Reader was not an agent authorised by Government to go into the barracks of our soldiers, but he thought that with the sanction given by His Excellency in becoming the Patron of the Society, the officers in command of regiments would willingly give what assistance they could. The increase of the establishment of the Society would, of course, render the collection of funds imperative. The public generally had not yet been called upon to contribute to this Society, in fact he imagined that many persons were not aware of its existence. It was to give those who approved of the work an opportunity of assisting in it, that this resolution was moved. (Applause.)

Lieutenant Colonel Kinloch seconded the resolution,—which was then carried.

Major-General Lucas moved,—"That the cordial thanks of this meeting be given to His Excellency Sir Robert Napier for his kindness in becoming Patron of the Bombay Auxiliary Society, and in presiding on the present occasion." He felt confident that Sir Robert Napier's name at the head of this Society would be of immense benefit. Sir Robert was generally called "the soldier's friend," and the countenance he gave would commend the work of the Society to all in the army. When he (Major Gen. Lucas) first came to this country, very many years ago, the Bible was neglected and was hardly seen in any house—certainly not in barracks; but that a great change had taken place since then was apparent from the fact that a large number of ladies and gentlemen were now assembled for the purpose of spreading the Bible among the soldiers. General Lucas referred with high praise to the labours of Mr. Reeves, one of the Scripture Readers of the Society; and concluded by saying that he hailed with great delight the prospect of this Society succeeding with such a Patron as Sir Robert Napier.

The resolution was seconded by the Rev. Mr. Spring and carried.

Sir Robert Napier rose and said: My Lord Bishop, ladies and gentlemen.—It has afforded me the greatest pleasure to preside at this meeting and to accept the office of Patron of the Scripture Readers' Society. If any of us had doubts of the value of the services of the Scripture Readers, those doubts would have been dispelled by the eloquent and feeling addresses of the Lord Bishop and the other gentlemen who have spoken this evening. It is no small assurance of the value of the Scripture Readers, that those officers who have borne testimony to it may be truly described as men "fervent in prayer, not slothful in business." From my observation of them in the course of their duty, I feel that these are officers on whom I can rely in every situation. (Applause.) I have known British soldiers in the peaceful routine of garrison life—in the daily conflicts and privations of a long siege—in the doubtful battle, and in the heat of pursuit, and the more I have seen of them the more I have respected them, for the honourable ranks. I have always found them more amenable to a word of kindness and encouragement, than to the fear of punishment. The course of my duty has led me to the hospitals and prison cells, and I can well appreciate the value of the Scripture Reader's services to the poor patient in the long and weary hours of sickness, or to the prisoner, perhaps debilitated by dissipation, and left in the solitude of his cell to reflect on the misery which he has brought upon himself. Who can over-estimate the value of a word spoken to them in good season? I feel that the objects of this Society deserve our best wishes and support. As Commander-in-Chief—as a soldier—and as a member of the Government I feel that the State is deeply indebted to those who have devoted their time and labour and money to establish the Army Scripture Reader's and Soldiers' Friend Society. As long as the Scripture Readers adhere to the excellent rules laid down for their guidance, they will be sure of the protection and support of the commanding officers. They must remember that the State has an equal regard for every soldier in the ranks of the army, whatever may be his religious persuasion, and desires that he shall follow the form of worship approved by his conscience with perfect freedom. They must be careful not to offend a brother by an ostentatious parade of what may be distasteful to him; they must work in subordination to the Chaplains, and following humbly and meekly in their Master's footsteps their labours will prosper. After so much has been said, and so well said, on the subject, I shall say no more than that I shall give my most cordial support to the Society for employment of Scripture Readers for our army. (Applause.)

Sir Robert read a letter which had been received from H. E. the Governor, through his Private Secretary, expressing his regret at being prevented by his visit to Poona from attending this meeting, as he would have liked to do, and his sympathy with the objects of the Society.

The proceedings were then brought to a close.

ADDRESS TO MISS CARPENTER BY THE STUDENTS' LITERARY AND SCIENTIFIC SOCIETY.

THE members of the Students' Literary and Scientific Society met in the Hall of the Elphinstone Institution on Wednesday night for the purpose of presenting an address to Miss Carpenter.

Miss Carpenter on entering the hall was accompanied by the Sheriff, Mr. Venayek Wassoodew.

Dr. Bhau Dajee (the President of the Society), addressing Miss Carpenter, said it had been the intention of the members to present an address to her on her arrival in Bombay, but that circumstances which did not need to be explained had prevented them from doing so. He was glad, however, that they were able to embrace this opportunity, of not only expressing their sentiments with regard to her visit to Bombay, but of having some scholarship established in her name in connection with the schools under the management of this Society.

Rao Saheb Viswanath Narayen Mundlik (the Secretary) then at the request of the President read the following address, which had been unanimously voted by the members of the society:—

"To MISS MARY CARPENTER.

"MADAM,—In the name of the Students' Literary and Scientific Society, the Committee of Management bid you heartily welcome to Bombay. The record of your fame as a sincere, zealous, and disinterested friend and active well-wisher of mankind, had travelled to this land long before your arrival, and amongst it to the truely noble and self-sacrificing order of British womanhood to which you belong, India owes a deep debt of gratitude; but your claims on our respect, admiration, and gratitude are enhanced by their hereditary character by the fact of your being the philanthropic daughter of a philanthropic father, who was at once a friend and admirer, colleague and biographer, of the greatest of India's modern sons, and one of the worthiest of her reformers. The names of Rajah Ram Mohun Roy and Dr. Carpenter are indissolubly united in our grateful memory, and it is no small happiness to us to have this opportunity of conveying an expression of our heartfelt regard to one who has so nobly emulated the spirit of her father in his earnest desire for the welfare of the people of this land. But, madam, there is another and more special circumstance in the occasion which has called us together this day that imparts a peculiar character to your claims on our respectand attention. This Society, as you are aware, was founded by students and alumni of the Elphinstone College for self-improvement, under the direction of zealous and respected professors and teachers seventeen years ago. Their discussions on social and other matters relating to their countrymen soon bore one excellent fruit. The students were led by an irresistible enthusiasm—the result of their English education—to do something practically for the good of their country; and encouraged by their worthy teachers, they resolved on commencing the task of female education amongst the higher classes in Bombay. This they attempted in a truly self-sacrificing spirit, having undertaken to act as gratuitous teachers during their leisure hours. These disinterested efforts speedily opened the way to female education, and the prejudices against it disappeared amongst almost every section of native society. Sympathy for the cause and support in the shape of funds soon followed, and the management of female schools has since been the Society's chief care. We do not flatter ourselves to have done much in a cause in which our best interests are so intimately connected. On the contrary, we are sensible that the work has only begun, and that renewed efforts will have to be made by us at every step to overcome the barriers which ignorance, joined to the prevailing apathy for improvement, opposes to its progress. Our pupils are girls who, owing to a want of qualified female teachers, to the custom of early marriages, to social prejudices, and to a variety of other circumstances, leave the school early. Our task thus remains only partially accomplished; but by the Divine blessing we intend to persevere in our humble efforts, and cannot but feel that such devoted friends of our sacred cause, as yourself, by their love and sympathy, zeal, knowledge, and experience, in pointing out such remedies as the comparison of our condition with that of other countries might suggest, afford us a sure ground of hope for the success of our labours. And with this conviction it would have been unpardonable on the part of the Students' Literary and Scientific Society, were we not to take the opportunity of freely disclosing to you our hopes and fears in advancing a cause which you have so near at heart. Before concluding, we would request your acceptance along with this address of a copy of the Society's reports, and your permission to endow a scholarship in your name in connection with our schools. The members of this Society have in accordance with your suggestions, by which they heartily concur, forwarded, in conjuction with others, a memorial to Government for the establishment of training normal schools for female teachers; and they will not rest till this great event in the educational scheme is supplied, with or without the assistance of Government. (Applause). With profound respect we beg to subscribe ourselves,—

Yours faithfully,

BHAU DAJI, President.

VISHWANATH NARAYEN MUNDLIK, Secretary, and others.

Miss Carpenter, in acknowledging the address, said this was a most unexpected kindness on the part of the Society, and that she really hardly knew what to say to it; but yet it did suggest so many thoughts on the various topics treated in it that she must beg to be permitted to say something in detail. First of all, she was particularly touched with the idea that when she was approaching this country, an entire stranger to it, and knowing only one or two that she could hope to meet as friends, that there were so many prepared to welcome her and to show a sympathy with her which she had had no idea of receiving. That had been a very great encouragement and a very great happiness; and it showed among other things that the work of philanthropy—of helping one's fellow-creatures—was not confined to one's own country but was to be seen all over the world. When we found those of other countries working in a cause which we had ourselves at heart we felt towards them, not as if they belonged to another country, but as if they belonged to our own and it was thus they had received her when she had thought she would be quite a stranger here. This was very delightful and encouraging. The next point was one still more touching, and that was their mention of her revered father—that he was still known as having been the friend of their most distinguished countryman. She could only say, with respect to herself, that whatever she had been able to accomplish in this land she could trace directly to him. It was he who had first led her to take an interest in India, and above all it was he who had inspired her with the wish to do good to her fellow-creatures; and he had done so not so much by precept as by example. She therefore truly rejoiced that they they had treasured his remembrance in connection with Rammohun Roy, and she might say that this city had very strongly reminded her of him. She had had the pleasure the other day of going over the excellent institution of Dr. Wilson; and she did not recollect that she had ever been so forcibly reminded of the manner in which her revered father used to train the young men committed to his charge as in listening to that venerable and illustrious gentleman instructing those who were placed under him. It was to her mind very touching; and she could not doubt that he would do much good and that the young men themselves appreciated the advantages they enjoyed. Then, they had spoken in their address of their own Society. It was most interesting that they had for seventeen years been so devoting themselves. That was a thing quite unknown in England. They were not at all aware of such a Society existing, and she thought it would be one of the pleasing fruits of her visit that she would be able to make known in her country how much had been done in this city by enlightened and penetrating persons to benefit their fellow-creatures and to improve themselves. She was shortly to return, and she would return feeling that she had treasures of information to give; and she could assure her h

Holloway's Pills.—Nervous Debility.—Persons who feel weak, low, and nervous, may rest assured some serious ailment is looming in the distance, against which instant action should be taken. Holloway's Pills present the ready means of exciting energetic action on the liver, liberating accumulated bile, and lifting at once a load from the spirits, and expelling a poison from the body. This simple and natural method of remedying the first tendency to disease gives present ease and insures future safety. The pallid, and all those who are losing flesh should try these Pills, which are especially useful when the digestive or other functions are imperfectly performed, and demand immediate attention, for in after years neither mind nor body will be found developed.

THE PHARMACOPŒIA.—The following is an EXTRACT from the Second Edition (page 188) of the Translation of "The Pharmacopœia" of the Royal College of Physicians of London, by Dr. G. F. COLLIER, published by Longman and Co. :—

"It is no small defect in this compilation (speaking of 'The Pharmacopœia') that we have no purgative mass but what contains aloes ; yet we know that hemorrhoidal persons cannot bear aloes, except it be in the form of COCKLE'S PILLS, which chiefly consist of aloes, scammony, and colocynth, which I think are formed into a sort of compound extract, the acridity of which is obviated, I suspect, by an alkaline process, and by a fourth ingredient (unknown to me) of an aromatic tonic nature. I think no better and no worse of it for its being a patent medicine. I look at it as an article of commerce and domestic convenience, and do not hesitate to say it is the best-made Pill in the kingdom ; a muscular purge, a mucous purge, and a hydrogogue purge combined, and their effects properly controlled by a dirigent and corrigent. That it does not commonly produce hæmorrhoids, like most aloetic pills, I attribute to its being thoroughly soluble, so that no undissolved particles adhere to the mucous membrane."
